PURLS

Pursuit of Pattern Languages for Societal Change

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

PURLSOC is intended to stimulate the attention for pattern related work, both in the scientific community and the wider public, by showing its broad applicability and richness and bringing application/best practice examples from outside the scientific community into research.

The PURLSOC conference provides a forum for pattern researchers from a variety of fields as well as for the broader public to come together to present and discuss fields of applications like:

- »» Architecture, Urbanism and Regional Development
- »» Design, Media, Arts & IT
- »» Pedagogy, Education and Learning
- »» Social Activism, Social Innovation and Grassroots Movement
- »» Everyday Applications and Additional Disciplines

PURLSOC is taking place every two years on an alternating basis with the International PUARL Conference at the University of Oregon in Portland.
